Annual Meeting of the Ratepayers

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Village of Arrowood was held in the Village Offices in the Ingraham Building, on Monday, February 5th, at 7 p.m. The attendance was small but what was lacking in numbers was made up in the interest shown in the affairs of the Village.

M. R. Leonard was elected Chairman, and called for the reading of the Auditor's report. The report was read and after being discussed and explained, was adopted and placed on file. The financial position of the Village at the close of 1933 was considered satisfactory and the Council was complimented on the way they had kept expenses down to a minimum.

The debt of the Rink Co., which the Village guaranteed a few years ago, was brought up and the general feeling of those present was that as it had to be paid some time, it would be good business to pay it now and save further interest and obtain a discount, if possible.

At 8 o'clock the meeting was declared open for nominations for the office of Councillor. Mr. J. P. Beagle being the retiring Councillor. The nomination of Mr. J. P. Beagle was the only one received; therefore at 9 o'clock he was declared elected by acclamation.

Vulcan Pioneer Dies

One of the few remaining pioneers of Vulcan district was laid to rest at Vulcan Cemetery Friday afternoon in the person of William Henry Journey. Memories of other pioneers who have passed away are recalled including E. Steiner and "Dad" Fletcher. All were typical of a young western country and Mr. Journey specially seemed to represent the eternal youth of the West. Even when years were creeping on he was ready to step out into new ventures. He had a distinct personality and a large crowd gathered from all parts to pay a last tribute to one of its oldest pioneer.

Mr. Journey was born in Kentucky 75 years ago, moved to Portage, Mo., and in 1905 settled in the Vulcan district where he remained until 1928, when once again struck out for new world settling in Grande Prairie district, where he died Tuesday, Jan. 31. He was buried here in his wife's plot, pre-deceased him four years ago.

Rev. McPherson conducted the funeral service at the United Church and Miss Tuttle sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Mr. Journey left three sons: Howard at Grande Prairie, Clyde at Arrowood, Lloyd in California, and one daughter, Mrs. Lou Douglas, Vulcan. There are also 4 grandchildren, W. G. Peterson, W. F. Jeunejohn, R. L. Elvess, G. M. Carson, F. B. Clark and H. Douglas acted as pall-bearers.

Somehow Things Work Out

Because it rains when we wish it wouldn't,

Because men do what they often shouldn't,

Because crops fail and plans go wrong,

Some of us grumble all day long,

But somehow in spite of care and doubt,

It seems at last that things work out.

Because we lose where we hoped to gain,

Because we suffer a little pain,

Because we must work when we'd like to play,

Some of us whimper along life's way,

But somehow as day follows night,

Most of our troubles work out alright,

Because we cannot for ever smile,

Because we must trudge in the dust awhile,

Because we think that the way is long,

Some of us growl that life's all wrong,

But somehow we live and our sky grows bright,

And everything seems to work out right,

So tend to your trouble and meet your care,

For the clouds must break and the sky grow fair,

Let the rain come down as it must and will,

But keep on working and hoping still,

For in spite of the grumblers that stand about,

Somehow it seems all things work out.—E. A. Guest.

Look For A Silver Lining

During periods of difficulty and discouragement it is natural that the minds of people turn to and dwell upon those conditions which are the source of their difficulties and the cause of their discouragement. In fact, the tendency is for people to dwell upon these things to the almost complete exclusion of subjects which provide reason for confidence and encouragement.

This, it may be repeated, is quite natural; just as natural, in fact, as it is for birds to croak and wagtails sing. When we do this, however, the majority of us are enthusiastic optimists, and quite impatient of words of warning and caution from more thoughtful observers, when things are going well, but are just as confirmed pessimists, and impatient with those who point to favorable signs, when the existing state of affairs is bad. Very few of us take note of the cloud small as a man's hand coming up the horizon when the noonday sun is shining, and the number is equally small who can see the silver lining to the clouds when the skies are completely overcast.

As a result of this tendency, mankind ploughs thoughtlessly ahead, the great majority sweeping all others long for good or ill. During boom periods, when the cry is full steam ahead, and when this, that, or the other great project involving the expenditure of millions of borrowed money is being advocated, persons who tend the adviser that we should give more serious consideration to the project, count the cost, and give a thought to the ultimate result, are often regarded as tightwads, non-progressive. Governments which at such times tell the people that there is a limit to this discounting of the future, that a pay-as-you-go policy is much wiser, are swept away. The spenders take control.

But when the bubble bursts, when prosperity vanishes and depression takes its place, when the free spending comes to an end, and the bills are presented to the public to meet, when bills are paid by the public in heavier and heavier doses, then those same men are most despatched in fear of incurring the bills and most contemptuous of those who urged caution, are the first to complain of the shortsightedness of politicians and Government upon whom they proceed to lay responsibility for all their troubles. On the other hand, during the prosperous periods most people take full credit to themselves for their own advancement, their increased prosperity, and the general improvement of their business and their community, and are the first to claim a share of the credit.

After all, these are common traits in our human make-up. It is well, however, to occasionally take a good, square look at ourselves, to reflect upon ourselves, to consider our own past views and actions and their effect upon present day conditions. Furthermore, in this present period of discouragement, it is well to remember that our natural tendency to see everything through rose-colored spectacles and to take a look at the world as it is.

Notwithstanding all our economic problems, Canada is far from some of the worse of those which afflict the people of other nations. For example, what community in the whole length and breadth of Canada has been shocked and outraged by a lynching in its midst, such as is more or less a commonplace occurrence in the United States? How many kidnappings have occurred in Canada even during these times which unquestionably are an attempt to lead us to believe that kidnappers are daily happening on the lines? And why is it such a marked difference for the better prevails on this side of an imaginary line?

The answer is to be found in Canada's far superior judicial system, resulting as it has in absolute confidence that even-handed justice will be administered, thus rendering the invoking of Lynch-law unnecessary on the one hand, and proving a deterrent to kidnappers, murderers, and gangster activities. The tradition of respect for law and order in Canada is a great asset, bringing comfort and security to the people, and providing a sure guarantee against mob law and gangster rule in this Dominion. It is a strong foundation upon which Canada rests and will build throughout the future.

More of the silver lining is seen in the absence of riots and riots and picketings in this Dominion as compared with many other lands. There have been no occurrences in Canada, other than the recent strike with the loss of the life of an isolate, or acts of picketing, but there have been no killings, and, generally speaking, peace and order have prevailed throughout the period of the depression. Canada's legislation dealing with industrial disputes has been effective even under the strain and stress of the present economic upheaval because that legislation is fair to all, human in its principles and effective in its operation and administration in providing justice for all. In this respect, Canada is showing a picture that is most gratifying to all who are interested in social conditions.

In Canada, too, our political system and institutions have stood the test. Revolutions have taken place in other lands, in which lives have been lost, property destroyed, liberties taken away, dictatorships established. In Canada, our people have been moving forward through the orderly processes of democratic, representative government. There has been no revolution, nor will there be. Confidence has been restored in our existing form of government and all are working together to the people's will to enable them to achieve such reforms as they desire.

Many other examples might be cited, and will occur to readers of this article, but those mentioned are given as an incentive to people to try and overcome their natural tendency to look constantly on the dark side of things in these days, and, for a change, contemplate and study those that are not only brighter but contain promise of still brighter, better things ahead.

Household Drudgery

The Bane of a Woman's Life

Nature intended women to be strong and healthy, but how can a woman have strength when she goes through the trials of household drudgery without any relaxation? It is a wonder who becomes nervous and irritable, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, shortness of breath, and aching and smothering sensations, and can't sleep at night.

Women who are weak and run down will find in Milburn's H. & N. Pills a remedy to strengthen the system and bring back the much desired health.

Woman Botanist Has Made Hazardous Trip

Tale Of Heroic Journey Brought Down From Akhavik

From out of the fastnesses of Canada's frozen north emerged a tale of a woman's hazardous journey along 350 miles of the most dangerous part of the Mackenzie River. Miss Isabel W. Hutchinson, young Scotswoman, completed the journey braving hardship, hunger and bitter cold, and arriving at her destination, Akhavik, just before Christmas. Her exploit was brought to Fort Smith by Pilot John Bythell, Canadian Airways, returned from several months in the far north.

The Scotswoman came by the trip dog teams, Pilot Bythell said, when snow was deep and the trail was narrow, his way to Barron's schooner around from Point Barrow. When the ice formed she took to sleds. It had been Miss Hutchinson's intention to make connections with the Arctic boat. Passengers near Point Barrow were not numerous, but she was able to take her to her desired destination, Herschel Island. She therefore chartered Eskimo schooners along the route to help her on her way.

Accidentally, about this time Miss Hutchinson had the distinction of visiting and bringing several souvenirs from the derelict Hudson Bay Company's boat Baychimo, which was then still afloat about 15 miles offshore.

Later, and after a succession of hard days, she reached the village about 350 miles short of her goal. This distance with severe hardship and difficulty she covered with borrowed dog teams, arriving at Akhavik a few days before Christmas.

Apparently, added Pilot Bythell, she was little the worse for this tremendous journey, which if only on account of the excessive cold this winter, would have daunted the most hardened of northern travellers.

Miss Hutchinson is collecting rare and interesting specimens for the Royal Geographical Society, England, and for the same purpose spent many months in Greenland a year ago. She is built in good health, Mr. Bythell continued, and her appearance certainly belies the staunch heart and dogged determination which must accompany any one who could so compete with the hardy Eskimos in his own terrain.

Empire Mail Service

Studying Routes Between United Kingdom and Canada

The aeronautical correspondent of the London Daily Mirror does a hasty committee meeting, considering steps to launch an intensive period of Empire air communication expansion and that it was studying the routes between the United Kingdom and Canada and the United Kingdom and Australia.

Mr. G. E. Moore, the correspondent said, would include faster air mail services and a modified subsidy system. The committee sought, he added, to develop an airmail service comparable with that in the United States.

A Second Houndini

English Vicar Skilled In Freezing People

The Vicar of East Barton, Northamptonshire, England, Rev. L. A. Ewart, is something of a second Houdini, if he had not adopted the church as a career, might have been famous by his remarkable skill in escaping from iron-girded or handcuffs in the presence of friends and acquaintances.

At a British Legion dinner at the neighboring village of Irchester he astonished the company by a masterful display of handcuff magic. His hands were manacled behind his back, but in a few minutes the vicar was free, too, locks having been opened.

Mr. Ewart has been known to escape from 25 locks in 10 minutes. He has freed himself from American flags, Siberian fetters and German handcuffs.

On one occasion a police inspector (off duty) at a gathering, fastened a pair of handcuffs on Mr. Ewart, but had no key to release the vicar if he failed to escape. In a few moments the Vicar had freed himself. Smilingly, however, he declined to show his method of escape and the inspector had to return to the police station to get the handcuffs removed.

White Collar Women

Most Unemployed Office Girls Want To Do Any Work

The white collar women are giving Los Angeles a lot of worry, says W. L. Clark, in Board of Cities Star. They are the ones who have given out of work and the civic authorities are at their wits' ends to know what to do about it. The white collar girls are the stenographers, bookkeepers, secretaries, receptionists and nurses for doctors and dentists, pharmacists and other office machine operators, saleswomen, bank girls, and others. They call them white collar girls because they are the ones who worked side by side with the white collar men in offices and stores. With 14,000 trained women and girls seeking and finding jobs, Los Angeles is faced with a serious quandary.

They call them white collar girls because they are the ones who worked side by side with the white collar men in offices and stores. With 14,000 trained women and girls seeking and finding jobs, Los Angeles is faced with a serious quandary.

Nor is the question unique in California. Every city in Canada has the same problem to solve. Women's white collar girls are anxious to work, but some of them are too tired to work. In fact some of them are only too pleased to work for anything at all.

Conditions Are Improving

Evidence Of Upturn In Business Shows An Increase In Sales Of Salada Tea

An indication that conditions are improving and that business is on the upturn is shown by the fact that the Salada Tea Co. sold over 54% more tea in Western Canada in 1933 than in 1932.

This is especially significant since Salada is a quality tea.

Marvels of the Human Eye

By F. M. CROWE, Optometrist-Optician, Calgary

NO. 7—PRESBYOPIA OR "OLD-AGE SIGHT"

In an individual with normal distant vision such glasses, although they may be required for near work, do not affect the eyes across the room. Also the Presbyopia who needs glasses for distant vision, may have eyes which are not strong, or Bifocal, for near work.

The first symptoms of Presbyopia are difficulty in reading by artificial light, difficulty in reading by paper held at a distance of four or more inches away instead of fourteen or sixteen inches. With glasses, the eyes are affected to force a focus, become unbalanced in their relation to each other, causing visual fatigue, eye strain, watering, sensitivity, watery eyes, print blurred and runs together and double vision.

For sustained close work a certain amount is absolutely necessary, but the amount of force of eyes does not possess, hence the necessity of assisting the failing accommodation. Accommodation is the form of glasses and as the accommodation continues to decrease, the strength of the lenses must be increased. This change should be every two or three years.

Ruling Is Strict

Producers Require Permit To Pack

Grade A1 Eggs

Grade A1 of Canadian eggs is a super-grade and the packing of this grade may be done only by producers authorized by permit by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Applications for permits are being sent to the Poultry Services, Dominion Live Stock Branch, Ottawa. Grade A1 is explained, was included in the recent revisions to the Canadian Standard egg grades for two reasons.

One reason is that the demand for eggs is increasing and, as a result, because of production conditions and speed of marketing, merit some recognition over the top commercial fresh egg grade, and, accordingly, to establish a grade which would seem to be ideal towards which producers would be encouraged to work. Grade A1 eggs are not a product intended for inter-provincial trading or long shipment.

They are produced only under carefully controlled production conditions and are marketed without delay.

Word was received at Montreal of the death at Walsay, England, of Captain Francis Care, 85, former commander of the Canadian Pacific Fleet, who retired in 1914.

Captain Care had an adventurous life in his many years on the sea. He crossed the Atlantic 600 times, once towed a huge passenger boat 800 miles in December seas, transported a herd of bison, and was the first commander of the ill-fated Empress of Ireland.

The aged captain once successfully commanded all the "laker" boats on the Beaver line and was also with the Elder Dempster line before becoming captain of the Empress of Ireland in 1906.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By EDNA ROBE WEBSTER
Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Arason, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until they can afford to live together. Peter is a young struggling sculptor who has just won a scholarship to study abroad and Camilla is his family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age, and it is still a secret to her. They hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avil Worth, another sculptor, and his wife, Anna; Peter, Sylvia, Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former manager who has quit him. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's host with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to the beach to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach. In the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avil and another boy are there. They are shocked to find it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are engaged. They are shocked by Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla decides that she must leave the home of her adopted parents immediately and return to live with Rose, her sister who is a clerk in a business house. They decide to take an apartment.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"Well, you win the scholarship and go abroad, and that will give me a chance with your girl," slyly. "What girl?"

"The rich little dame we quarreled over."

"Camilla?"

"Sure. Lord, she's a beauty, though."

"She's my wife," Peter announced calmly.

"What?" Gus shouted. His incredulity and consternation surpassed even Mrs. Hoyt's. "Tell me something I can believe."

"Believe it or not."

"What?"

"Don't you ever read the society column in the papers? We were married the day after commencement, but it was announced only last week. We finally obtained the Hoyt blessing after keeping it a secret as long as we could."

"What a break for you! I guess I came to the right place for help, all right. You live over there in that palace?"

"Not much. Neither will Camilla, after this week."

"You don't mean she's come here to live with you, in this little room?" he ridiculed.

"No, she wants to live with her sister, until I get going. That was the idea."

"Oh, trying a new stut, to solve the struggle problem of marriage?"

"Just about that. It's Camilla's idea, until I can afford to keep her. She's going to work, too."

"Sure, she thinks that's a can, but it won't last. Not for her. Occasional wife, eh?" he grinned. "Well, I have to hand it to you. That's the kind of wife to have these days—one you don't have to take care of. But it might be dangerous to have a wife as beautiful as Camilla, so far."

Peter's jaw closed rigidly. "That'll do for you," he said evenly, but the words were like a growl of warning before an angered dog leaps.

Camilla stood up quickly, but his eyes watched. Peter waited with congratulations, anyway, and good luck. I'll run along now. But how about a loan of just a few weeks?" I wouldn't ask you if I didn't need it for the house."

"Sorry, Gus, but I haven't ten to my name. I'm just managing to keep myself while I finish this work. After that, I hope to do better."

When Gus had gone, Peter recalled details of entering the exhibit, and wondered whether it was Haid Syvia misinformed him, or had Gus given up the idea after he started? Peter was puzzled.

CHAPTER XXVIII

It was by a strange chain of circumstances that Camilla obtained her position. Of just such chains of linked coincidences is all life formed, and still folk wonder and exclaim over destiny's inexorable cunning as it shapes and forges the connecting web of fate and place and character in their consciousness. This was why she was more than a stranger than fiction. We take for granted in life what we refuse to believe possible in the lives of fictitious characters.

The business depression had called upon Weeks and Bowman to seek employment. What was left of the members of the party go to the beach to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach. In the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avil and another boy are there. They are shocked to find it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are engaged. They are shocked by Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla decides that she must leave the home of her adopted parents immediately and return to live with Rose, her sister who is a clerk in a business house. They decide to take an apartment.

"Well, you win the scholarship and go abroad, and that will give me a chance with your girl," slyly. "What girl?"

"The rich little dame we quarreled over."

"Camilla?"

"Sure. Lord, she's a beauty, though."

"She's my wife," Peter announced calmly.

"What?" Gus shouted. His incredulity and consternation surpassed even Mrs. Hoyt's. "Tell me something I can believe."

"Believe it or not."

"What?"

"Don't you ever read the society column in the papers? We were married the day after commencement, but it was announced only last week. We finally obtained the Hoyt blessing after keeping it a secret as long as we could."

"What a break for you! I guess I came to the right place for help, all right. You live over there in that palace?"

"Not much. Neither will Camilla, after this week."

"You don't mean she's come here to live with you, in this little room?" he ridiculed.

"No, she wants to live with her sister, until I get going. That was the idea."

"Oh, trying a new stut, to solve the struggle problem of marriage?"

"Just about that. It's Camilla's idea, until I can afford to keep her. She's going to work, too."

"Sure, she thinks that's a can, but it won't last. Not for her. Occasional wife, eh?" he grinned. "Well, I have to hand it to you. That's the kind of wife to have these days—one you don't have to take care of. But it might be dangerous to have a wife as beautiful as Camilla, so far."

Peter's jaw closed rigidly. "That'll do for you," he said evenly, but the words were like a growl of warning before an angered dog leaps.

Camilla stood up quickly, but his eyes watched. Peter waited with congratulations, anyway, and good luck. I'll run along now. But how about a loan of just a few weeks?" I wouldn't ask you if I didn't need it for the house."

"Sorry, Gus, but I haven't ten to my name. I'm just managing to keep myself while I finish this work. After that, I hope to do better."

When Gus had gone, Peter recalled details of entering the exhibit, and wondered whether it was Haid Syvia misinformed him, or had Gus given up the idea after he started? Peter was puzzled.

A Letter of Appreciation

Logansport, Indiana,
Jan. 23rd, 1934

Dear Friends of Arrowwood:

Am sorry that it has been so very hard for me to write to you again (through the Resource), as I fully intended doing right after Father's death, but it seemed that I could not compose my thoughts sufficiently to do it, until this late date.

We want to express to you all our most sincere thanks for the many kind deeds, of word and of act that you did, so willingly and untiringly, for our parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher, all through the sickness of Father, and also after his death. For the beautiful floral offerings which were given, and for your very helpful consideration of our Mother, through this great trial of her life.

We cannot explain to you with words, how greatly it all has been appreciated by every member of our family (if they would all tell how they felt) and especially by us who knew the conditions, and could not be there to help through it all ourselves.

My greatest regret is that I could not have stayed there until the end; but perhaps I would have stayed longer if I had known it would all be over in three weeks. But it seemed so uncertain that I did not know what to do.

Now it is so different there at home that I cannot even visualize how it must be with father gone.

And even yet, I keep hearing of your thoughtfulness, until I am filled with gratitude to you, even though my heart is sad. My wish for you for 1934 is for the best of health, happiness and prosperity, and may you reap some of these good deeds you have sown.

We have had very little cold winter weather, and very little snow. The past week has been like spring, for which so many are thankful, since the coal bins are not too full this year. We have not heard of much sickness this year, which usually comes with an open winter.

Please forgive me for neglecting to write to you for so long, but I have never ceased to think of you, and realize that I was not doing my duty, by not thanking you for your continued efforts, but they are not forgotten and none the less genuine, because of my seeming neglect.

I would be pleased to hear from any of you at any time, and have appreciated the letters that I have received from you.

Very sincerely yours—
Wishing friend,

Mrs. Edward W. Arnold

Notes

While the present program of the church is being carried on, some plans are being made for special services during the month of March. During the two weeks, March 11 to 24, it is planned to have services on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. It has been decided to engage in the observance of the ordinances on Thursday evening, March 29, as this corresponds with the time the Lord ate the Last Supper with the disciples. On Friday, March 30, the crucifixion of the Lord will be commemorated by a three hour service, 12 noon to 3 p.m. Because of the sacredness of the crucifixion to all Christians, we hope that the community will unite in this commemoration and attend this service.

Social Credit In The Dominions

Both Australia and New Zealand are being swept by the Social Credit wave and a meeting which was recently held at Sydney, New South Wales, numbered over three thousand with an overflow audience in several amphitheaters. A tremendous demonstration followed the passing of a resolution calling for the immediate application of Social Credit to Australia.

Many of the delegates had journeyed hundreds of miles to attend the gathering in Sydney town hall, and reports were submitted showing an impressive increase in branches of the Social Credit movement throughout Western Australia. The spread of general interest in Major Douglas' plan was shown recently when the Western Australian Legislative Assembly called upon the Commonwealth government for a thorough enquiry into the operation of the financial system with special reference to Social Credit.

The Australian Labor party is reported to be adjusting, on the lines of the new theory, its plan for the socialization of national credit and banking, utilizing the Commonwealth Bank and the credit of the communities. The Social Credit Groups complain that Labor is still suffering from the delusion that work must be provided for everybody. But even Laborites, they admit, may live and learn.

Intelligence of Bees

Do bees "think?" This was one of the questions suggested by Dr. Frank E. Lutz of the American Museum of Natural History, at an address before the Royal Canadian Institute at Toronto. He told of a series of experiments he had conducted to test insect "intelligence," which he preferred in question marks.

Bees seemed to possess a great deal of ingenuity and seemed to be able to think and to communicate their thoughts to their bee friends, he pointed out. For example, he had placed sugar in a cage entrance to which was blocked at certain times. Entrances were made so that they could not be used as exits and at other points exits were provided.

He used a sloping trap door which easily pushed open when a bee was finding his way out but which only closed all the tighter if the bee attempted to enter. But shrewd little bees somehow watched till their conferees were coming out and then did what they did not do—let them up. Some bees found that by turning a somersault they could lift the trap door and roll in upside down and they did.

"Their ingenuity in circumstances may tax the imagination in devising it," said Dr. Lutz—Family Herald

Here and There

A tip for the encouragement of the younger ski generation is given by the Canadian Pacific Railways, which is planning a reconstruction of a school age ski excursion at low rates to the Lake Louise area next year.

The special was heavily patronized by the youngsters.

Statistics recently issued by the Bureau of National News and Statistics show that the cost of travel to travel by railroads in a year's operation of Canadian Pacific Railways.

The old belief that women cannot ski well because of their injury to posture and health was described as "bunk" by Dr. Billie Sherrill, who was a speaker at the National Shoe Retailers Association convention recently held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

A Canadian inter-collegiate ski meet, unique development in Eastern Canada as well as elsewhere, will be held at the Seigniory Club, Montebello, end of January, Toronto. University, Ontario Union and Ottawa Patrick's College in Ottawa are among the college teams to be represented.

In many places in Canada are replaced by marshes and bogs above 55 degrees at Victoria B.C., these degrees where the skiers start and continue tournament swingings into action at the Royal Colwood Course February 10-11. The record entry from ardent golfers indicates that again this year the tournament will be a big success.

Since the Bowden, Alberta, convention was the first of three big gatherings held at the Chateau Frontenac Quebec City this year, the annual meeting of the Canadian Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers Association and the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Tourists and Publicity Bureaus.
